WALLACE PLEDGES DRIVE TO PREVENT PRICE PYRAMIDING

Secretary of Agriculture
May Invoke Right To Force Labeling of Products To Show Tax Paid
Under Processing Levy.

PUBLIC SUPPORT OF PLANS WANTED

Official Stands Ready To Wield Vast Power To Prevent "Unreasonable"
Advances of Food Prices

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace, in an effort to prevent consumer resentment against the farm relief act, has indicated a decision to employ "to the limit" the powers provided him to ward off "unreasonable" increases of retail prices in the wake of new processing taxes. This was made known today in high agriculture department quarters and administrators looked for an initial test to follow imposition of the tax of 30 cents a bushel on wheat, effective at midnight, July 8.

May Label Products.

One plan under consideration today would result in the labeling of every product manufactured from wheat to show the exact amount of the tax that could be passed on to the consumer. Thus a pound loaf of white bread in the near future may carry a little paper notice reading: "The processing tax on wheat added .433 of a cent to the cost of this article."

Wallace has a variety of powers to deal with price increases. He called attention to his authority only yesterday in a telegram to the Iowa Bakers' Association, protesting their projected increase of bread prices from 5 to 8 cents per pound loaf, effective July 5.

Given Authority.

He called attention to his authority to provide him under the farm act to utilize anti-trust laws and asserted that the tax plus the recent increase in wheat prices combined to justify an increase of not more than one and one-third cents a loaf.

Wallace has full power to investigate price increases, to cause public display of figures showing the effect of a tax on a given product, and to label products in notice to consumers of the amount of tax represented in the price they pay.

Further he is empowered to license processors, distributors and dealers. Meanwhile, the bureau of internal revenue already has assumed its task of collecting the new tax. Forms for the enforcement of flour tax provisions were dispatched, requiring returns from approximately 35,000 bakers, between 100,000 and 500,000 retailers and about 4,000 millers.

Applies to Stocks.

When the tax goes into effect to finance acreage reduction among wheat farmers, it will apply not only to wheat entering mills to be ground into flour but also upon stocks of products processed from wheat held by millers and bakers.

"Stocks held by retailers are exempt from the tax for 30 days but retailers are required to file by August 7 an inventory of their stocks on hand at the start of business July 9.

"Retail dealers," the internal revenue bureau said today, "will not be required to pay taxes on separate retail stocks of flour, macaroni, break-

Freak Storm at Chicago Does $1,000,000 Damage

CHICAGO, July 2.—(AP)—A freak storm of less than 10 minutes duration, sweeping into Chicago from the Great Lakes, wrought damage estimated at $1,000,000 and caused injury to more than a score of persons today.

A 37-mile an hour wind, which weather bureau officials said had its origin in the Hudson's bay district, whirled about the saucer edge of the Lake Michigan shore, tearing roofs from buildings, uprooting trees and snapping off power lines before heading out over the water again.

The worst effect of the storm was felt in the Elston and St. Charles regions. Forty cottages were wrecked and 50 more were unroofed there. Four women occupants, trapped when the shelters collapsed, were removed to a hospital partially injured.

A resident of suburban Aurora suffered several fractured ribs when an uprooted tree fell across his automobile.

DEADLOCK ON GOLD PLACES W.E.C. FATE IN BRITAIN'S HANDS

Turn to France Would Alienate U. S. While
Opposite Course May Kill Conference.

LONDON, July 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's rebuff to France and her continental gold bloc left Great Britain in a dilemma tonight.

She could follow the dictates of the Bank of England, adhere to the gold standard and thwart the United States world price-raising program, or could turn toward the American inflationary policy, as urged by some of her dominions, and take the risk of wrecking the world economic conference.

It was acknowledged in all quarters that the great world assemblage, finally brought together after nearly a year's urging by Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain, had reached a most critical point and Americans regarded the president's action as placing upon British shoulders the burden of deciding its fate.

Roosevelt to Hold Ground.

While all delegations awaited the promised elaboration of the American stand tomorrow by Secretary of State Hull, the delegation chairman, in the hope of finding some means to bridge the rift, well informed quarters made plain that Mr. Roosevelt would not subscribe to the proposed declaration of a monetary truce in anything like the form which he rejected.

The declaration included a proposed agreement "that stability in the international monetary field should be obtained as quickly as practicable" and "that re-establishment of gold as a measure of international exchange value should be accomplished."

American delegates were frankly skeptical of the prospect of drawing up any new international statement.

The harassed British premier, who has been toiling to keep the conference going during its tempestuous first three weeks, broke up his week-end.

Report of Citizens' Group On Fulton County Affairs

Full text of the citizens' committee's report, as submitted to the May-June term grand jury, but not released by that body for publication, follows:

To the Grand Jury of Fulton County:

The citizens' committee, appointed by the March-April grand jury, and later confirmed by your body has heretofore filed specific reports with this grand jury. It summarizes these reports as follows:

When this committee was appointed, its very existence was challenged and its right to investigate was denied. As a result, the committee was hampered in beginning its investigation and has not had sufficient time to go fully into all matters which it believes should be investigated.

The committee feels, however, that through hundreds of pages of sworn testimony it has established facts (which are more fully shown in the special reports heretofore made) which show that the conduct of county affairs during the past few years has cost the public a very large sum in taxes more than it should have cost. It is shown that much money has been spent on the development of private subdivisions, which investments were of little or no value to the county as a whole and which should not have been made out of tax funds.

As showing some of the ways in which tax money has been improperly spent or lost, your committee wishes to summarize very briefly a few of the projects which have been heretofore reported on in greater detail.

North Morningside.

This was a tract of land in which Mr. Eberhard owned a one-third interest. It was passed up by county commissioners for grading and paving.

This was a subdivision in which two commissioners (Mr. Stewart and Mr. Eberhard) became interested. Thereafter, the county spent $86,740.02 in improving roads and building bridges for the benefit primarily of the landowners, as most of the roads were short roads with both

ITALIAN AIR FLEET REACHES IRELAND WITHOUT MISHAP

Balbo Hopes To Resume
Chicago Trip With Hop
Across North Atlantic to Iceland Today.

LONDON, July 2.—(AP)—General Italo Balbo's 24-plane squadron of Italian fliers reached here safely from Amsterdam just before noon today on their trans-Atlantic air voyage.

Some had narrow escapes from crashing when they brushed tree tops near their anchoring place, but all were moored without mishap.

The first contingent arrived about 11:25 a. m. (5:25 a. m. eastern standard time.) Others appeared 10 minutes later and the last of the ships descended just before noon.

Fine weather and tremendous crowds greeted the fliers. Intense excitement prevailed and the roads leading into Londonderry were choked with vehicles of every description.

The throng of spectators had many thrills from the time the planes first were seen until they were berthed.

Tree Tops Grazed.

The last six ships had a lively time, grazing the tree tops along the banks of the Foyle river and causing excited "ohs" and "ahs" from the on-lookers.

When they were anchored the planes formed a picturesque line along the Foyle.

Royal air force launches raced to meet General Balbo and brought him to land. The general was the first of the fliers to touch Ulster soil. Springing sharply to attention he saluted amid rousing cheers from the spectators.

General Balbo inspected troops in Guild Hall square and was loudly cheered after the band played the Italian march.

Approximately 10,000 persons were ranged around the square, many of whom had been waiting five hours to get a glimpse of the Italian fliers.

Reports to Chief.

General Balbo telephoned Rome immediately after he arrived and informed Premier Mussolini of the results.

Seeger's "Rendezvous" Commemorated by Vets

PARIS, July 2.—(AP)—Alan Seeger's "rendezvous with death" was commemorated today by a pilgrimage of American war veterans to the battlefield where the New York poet and 10 other Americans in the Foreign Legion fell 17 years ago.

Members of Trench and Air, association of former American volunteer combatants in the French army, placed a wreath at the monument where the dead were buried. The field, which is at Belloy-en-Santerre (Somme).

They also visited the Ossuary at Lihons where Seeger's body, never identified after the war, is believed to be resting among those of thousands of unknown dead.

Seeger, celebrated for his verse beginning "I Have a Rendezvous With Death," was killed by a burst of machine gunfire when a regiment of the Legion stormed German positions and took the village of Belloy-en-Santerre with a bayonet attack on July 4, 1916.

BRIBERY IS HINTED IN GROUP FINDINGS

"Large Part of County
Resources Is Being Devoted to Interests of Favored Few," Is Charge.

Charges that the books of the Fulton county commission show that a total of $381,854.92 has been "squandered" by the county on roads entirely within or immediately adjacent to property in which County Commissioner Paul S. Etheridge is, or was, interested, and that some of the transactions involved were in the nature of bribes, are contained in the report of its investigation of county affairs, which the citizens' committee made public Sunday.

George F. Longino Jr., of College Park, chairman of the county commission, and Commissioner Paul S. Etheridge, who was named in the report as having been benefited from county funds expended in other subdivisions.

The citizens' committee described seven tracts in which it said Etheridge was interested and asserted that they did not constitute a complete list of private projects in which the county commissioners have been or are interested, and on which county forces have worked and are being worked.

Property Development.

"Testimony has been given before us," the committee stated in its report, "which indicates that certain commissioners have not hesitated to develop their property and that of their political or financial backers at public expense, in order to bring about its sale."

"Also," the committee added, "that lavish expenditures of public funds have been made on the private property of private individuals, to silence their objections to similar expenditures on the adjoining land belonging to these commissioners."

"In addition," the committee's report stated, "we have been given by county employees a list of about 200 privately owned subdivisions and lands, on which public funds as high as $108,000 in individual cases have been and are being spent."

The committee stated that its investigation led to the conclusion that a large part of the resources of this county is being devoted to the interests of a favored few, without regard to the interest of the public as a whole.

Etheridge, apprised of the committee's charges, said that they were false, and that the committee knew they were false.

Longino said that he was not a member of the county commission at the time any of the transactions in which he was named in the committee report took place. Etheridge and Longino issued statements which appear elsewhere in this edition.

R. F. C. WILL AD SOVIET IN BUYING AMERICAN COTTON

Loans Expected To Finance Purchase of From 60,000 to 80,000 Bales of
U. S. Staple.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP)—Arrangement for a series of loans to American exporters with which to finance the sale of cotton for shipment to Russia was announced tonight by the Reconstruction Corporation.

Opening up a field of negotiation for shipments of a range of other commodities to the huge soviet nation, the Reconstruction Corporation's announcement tonight constituted the first such move by the American government since the U. S. S. R. came into its present power.

Formal discussion of the action followed close upon a conference in London between Assistant Secretary Raymond Moley, of the state department, and Maxim Litvinoff, foreign minister for soviet Russia.

The advisers from abroad had labeled the deal as virtually closed.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation, announced the loans to American exporters would be secured by the notes of the Amtorg Trading Company, commercial representative of the soviet state in America. Furthermore, Jones said, they would be "unconditionally guaranteed by the state bank of U. S. S. R." The loans will be for one year at an interest rate of 5 per cent.

Shipments Begin Soon.

"The Amtorg Trading Company," Jones said, "will pay 30 per cent of the purchase price in cash at the time of shipment and expects to ship about 60,000 bales."

FACTOR KIDNAPERS DEMAND $75,000

Officer Believes Market
Plunger Was Abducted
by Sankey Gang.

CHICAGO, July 2.—(AP)—Jerome Factor, 19-year-old son of kidnapped John Factor, stock market plunger, tonight disclosed he received a telephone call purporting to come from the abductors demanding $75,000 ransom in "small bills."

Jerome, himself a victim of kidnapers 10 weeks ago and now directing the search for his father abducted early Saturday, said he received the call earlier today at his home on Lunt avenue, on the north side.

"Yes," he said.

"Have $75,000 in small bills ready the first thing in the morning," the voice said. "We will get in touch with you again. Hurry up."

Young Factor tried to find out who was calling but the man hung up.

Makes Call Public.

Jerome decided to make the call public, he said, so that the newspapers could cooperate with him and inform the kidnappers the family could not possibly raise a sum such as demanded.

Belief that the notorious kidnap gang headed by Verne Sankey planned the kidnapping was expressed tonight by Police Lieutenant Frank Freemuth, head of the hoodlum squad at the detective bureau.

"I don't think it is a local talent that pulled this job," Freemuth said of Factor's kidnapping yesterday. "In fact, I wouldn't be surprised if some

Georgians Get $124,000 in South-Wide Distribution to Men's Families.

Approximately $950,000 was distributed in eight southeastern states June 30 by the Civilian Conservation Corps, according to figures disclosed today. Checks totaling $124,000, it was announced Sunday from fourth corps headquarters at Fort McPherson, The state state in Georgia, where the men themselves received $5 each. Between June 27 and July 15, 3,800 veterans will have been enrolled in the civilian corps, the Georgia veterans to be stationed at camps at Jesup, Summerville and McKee. A total of 36,000 men have enlisted in this area, 2,000 more, with forestry experience, will be enrolled, it was said.

Camps have been established at the following places in Georgia: Marietta, Columbus, Macon, Savannah, and Brunswick.

ROOSEVELT MEETS ADVISERS TODAY

Informal Cabinet Meeting To Be Held Aboard
Cruiser Indianapolis.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, on the last lap of his vacation afloat, was moving swiftly toward the Atlantic coast today aboard the cruiser Indianapolis.

Naval wireless operators were in receipt of a communication that the speedy cruiser was timing its trip so as to drop anchor off Annapolis, Md., before noon tomorrow.

The president has summoned an informal cabinet meeting aboard the vessel for early Monday afternoon. It was learned from those who will attend that the chief executive desired to catch up on the inside story of departmental events since his departure two weeks ago.

The cabinet call, however, was not mandatory, and several members of the official family will not attend, among them Secretary Woodin and Postmaster-General Farley, both of whom are absent from the capital, as is Acting Secretary William Phillips, of the state department.

In a brief statement issued from the White House it was said that members of the cabinet had been invited to lunch aboard the Indianapolis, but that their presence there would constitute "only a social visit," and that the meeting had "nothing whatever to do with the London conference."

Nevertheless, Acting Secretary Dean Acheson, of the treasury, was expected to be present and it was considered certain the luncheon table talk would turn at some time to the problems harassing the world economic parley, chief among which has been the stabilization question.

Firing ahead of a rainstorm, Mrs. Roosevelt returned to Washington today from her trip to Campobello Island, N. B., where the Roosevelts have a summer home.

The first lady flew unaccompanied on her journey back to the White House.

After two days stay here, Mrs. Roosevelt is scheduled to go to New York to see her son, Franklin Jr., off for Europe on vacation trip. He is expected to reach here tomorrow for an over-night stay.

5 MEN IDENTIFIED IN HOLDUP SERIES

Victims in Eight Recent Robberies View Suspects
at Police Station.

Four suspects arrested Saturday and a fifth arrested Sunday in connection with the robbery Saturday afternoon of the Wylie Street market, 880 Wylie street, were identified Sunday by eight persons who had been involved in a series of robberies in Atlanta within the last few weeks, according to police reports.

Moses Glenn, 21, of 613 McDonald street, was arrested Sunday by Detectives W. B. Martin and D. L. Taylor, and with Howard Rice, 22, of 225 Richardson street; D. F. Vandiver, 20, of 871 Kirkwood avenue; Clayburn Hendrix, 20, of 871 Fulton terrace, and Luther Dees, 23, of Richardson street, was being held at the police station on suspicion.

Police said the five youths had been operating in and around Atlanta for some time, and estimated their loot at hundreds of dollars. With the arrest of the five, police believe they have broken up a gang responsible for many of the most daring recent robberies.

Paul E. Tucker, manager of a drug store at 696 West Peachtree street, identified Rice, Dees and Vandiver as three bandits who robbed him of $30 June 30. Dees and Harwell were identified by W. C. Needham, manager of a filling station at Mountain View, who was robbed of $120 June 28. C. Gray, of 1385 May avenue, who was robbed recently of $25 in cash, identified Rice, Glenn and Harwell. C. Three Pickens Escapes Are Brought to Tower

Three of ten negro convicts who Saturday morning escaped from the Pickens county chain gang after killing Lee Lindsey, a guard, were recaptured Sunday by officers and were brought to Fulton tower early Monday morning for safe-keeping.

C. P. Killian, superintendent of the chain gang at Jasper, in Pickens county, said the negroes had been threatened by a mob in Canton, Ga., where they were first taken into custody.

Gray Brooks, 19-year-old Atlanta negro, serving a life term for murder; George Zuber, 29, of Calhoun, also serving a life term, and Reese Castleberry, 22, of Tate, sentenced to 3 to 5 years for burglary, were the three lodged in the Fulton county jail.

CALCIMINED WASHINGTON, July 2.—Faint touches of white wash are noticeable around the inner walls of the senate committee which is now investigating Huey Long.

The indications are plain that when they get through with the Louisiana senator he will look like the great white father.

The other day the committee had a secret meeting. It decided hearings should be resumed in the Long-Overton investigation at New Orleans October 16. The newspapermen were called and that news was freely distributed.

The committee also voted not to let its investigator go back to Louisiana to conclude his investigation.

That news was not given out.

JOCKEYING Gentlemen near the committee keyhole noted there was a peculiar timeliness in the decision to resume hearings.

The investigators had just learned that a certain nationally-circulated magazine was about to open a campaign of ridicule against their nearly forgotten farce. They beat the magazine to the bar of public opinion by a few days. The magazine was prevented from charging that Long had squandered the investigation. The committee thereby averted public criticism.

Surface facts now indicate it is going ahead strongly. Sub-surface ones do not.

BLUFF The real truth appears to be that Huey has the Indian sign on nearly everyone in Washington. That goes for republicans as well as democrats. The two republican members of the investigating committee have shown no eagerness to hustle things along. One has not attended a public session of the committee to this day. A manufacturing firm he is connected with now holds some Louisiana scrip on which it hopes to collect.

There seems to be no good reason for this terror that Huey has spread among the politicians.

The excuse they whisper around among themselves is that he is very popular with the soldier vote out in the country. He freely threatens to go into each of the investigator's home states and arouse this class of voters.

The investigators know what happened in Arkansas when Huey took his political showdown there last year. He elected Mrs. Caraway over the combined opposition of the democratic organization and the democratic leader of the senate.

None of the investigators want him in their states if they can keep him out.

LUKEWARM There is a better reason why the investigation will not be so hot from now on. It has no money. The committee conveniently forgot to get any while congress was in session. Now it cannot get any until next January.

The Long investigation was ended for all practical purposes when the investigators bottled up the Howell resolution to appropriate $25,000 for continuing the inquiry. Ordinarily such resolutions go to the senate committee on audit and control.

An exception was made in this case. The resolution was side-tracked to the committee conducting the investigation. That was last February.

It is still there today, gathering dust and obscurity.

PAL Long's big bark has been so loud here that no one has cared to find out in a practical way whether there is any bite behind it.

Once he told a group of senators in the cloakrooms: "When the revolution comes in this country, I will be the man on horseback. I will lead it."

He requires the congressmen he controls to run around like servants. He makes them bring him ice for his ginger ale and empty his ash trays in front of guests. If they fail to snap to attention, he says far more forcefully than it can be written: "Man, I made you and I can break you."

Once he went up to a certain liberal senator and said: "I like

Good bread is the first requirement for good sandwiches. It slices best when 24 hours old. For variety, use different kinds of bread for sandwiches for the picnic box—for instance, rye for ham and Swiss cheese, whole wheat for cream cheese and jams or jelly, white for egg salad and relish. If you can't cut nice, even slices, by all means use sliced bread. Choose fillings that are neither too moist or too dry.

On the Air Today

Tito Guizar, Mexican tenor, will be heard in a recital of popular Spanish and English melodies from 7:45 to 8 o'clock tonight over WGST and a nationwide Columbia network. Accompanied by Howard Barlow and the Columbia Concert orchestra, Guizar will feature one of his own compositions, a love song entitled "Love Is In Your Eyes."

"Romance of the People," an elaborate musical pageant including more than 3,500 actors and musicians, will be broadcast direct from a Century of Progress in Chicago over WABC and a coast-to-coast Columbia network and WGST from 8:45 to 9:15 o'clock tonight.

Ted Husing, ace Columbia sports announcer, will begin a new series of "Sportscasts" programs over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon. Each Monday at this time Husing will chat on various aspects of sport events, both past and forecast.

A program in connection with the National Education Association convention to be held in Chicago July 1 to 7 will be broadcast from Honolulu, Hawaii, over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST from 2 to 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Helen Grace Carlie, author of "Mothers Cry" and "We Begin," will discuss the early days of America when she is interviewed on Thomas L. Stix's "America's Grub Street Speaks" program over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST from 3:45 to 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Two Men in Hospital After Gun, Knife Fight

Two men were in Grady hospital Sunday as the result of a mysterious shooting and stabbing affray early Sunday morning near Roswell. They were Clyde Whitfield, 20, of Roswell, Route 1, who was shot in the abdomen, and B. L. Grizzle, also of Route 1, Roswell. Neither was in a serious condition.

Whitfield and Grizzle told hospital attaches conflicting stories of the altercation. The former said he went to Grizzle's house to find another man and that Grizzle shot him as he attempted to enter. Grizzle said Whitfield came under trees in his yard, attacked him with a knife when he admonished him to keep quiet after granting him permission to park their cars under trees in his yard. Carl Whitfield wrested his shotgun from him after he wounded the brother and clubbed him with it, Grizzle said.

Henchman of Coll

Again Breaks Prison

EASTVIEW, N. Y., July 2.—(UP) Arthur Palumbo, 27, former member of the Vincent Coll gang, escaped from the Westchester county penitentiary early today for the second time within a year.

Several days ago he had been placed in a cell in the solitary confinement block, the most secure place in the institution, but shortly before 9 a. m. guards found his cell door open and Palumbo missing.

According to Warden Paul R. Brown, Palumbo had picked the lock of the door in some manner and then at the end of the corridor got through a barred window, squeezing himself through a space 7 by 12 inches, gaining the roof from which he descended by means of a rope of bed clothes, blackened so as to avoid detection.

An automobile was believed to have been waiting for him, the warden said, as Palumbo's tracks ended abruptly at a road several hundred yards from the penitentiary.

MITNICK PLACE RAIDED, WHISKY, WINE SEIZED

DeKalb county policemen raided the Mitnick place in the southern part of the county near Constitution, Ga., Saturday, arrested A. H. Mitnick, 58, and his daughter, Lilly Lichtenstein, and confiscated several gallons of whisky, wine and beer. Mitnick is being held in the DeKalb county jail under $1,000 bond, and his daughter under bond of $500.

The Mitnick place, about 9 miles from Decatur on South river, is widely known in the section as the site of a dance hall.

VENIZELLOS TO RESIGN AS ELECTION IS LOST

ATHENS, Greece, July 2.—(UP) Followers of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, dynamic opposition leader, lost in the important by-elections in Salonica today, returns from the day's heavy poll indicated conclusively tonight.

The white-bearded statesman, target recently of an assassin's bullet which wounded him, announced he was retiring from politics and going into exile abroad, as a result.

The government of Premier Tsaldaris won 20 seats in the by-elections, and thus control 248 seats in the chamber against the opposition's 91. The vote gives the government a majority in both houses of parliament.

LISTS CLOSE TODAY FOR 'MISS ATLANTA' CONTEST TUESDAY

Today is the last day in which entries will be received for the annual "Miss Atlanta" bathing beauty contest to be held as one of the features of the Fourth of July program at Lakewood park.

Entries will be received at the downtown office, 234 Peachtree, until 5 o'clock this afternoon, either by telephone or registration at the office. Marlene Queen and Gladys Elliott entered Sunday, bringing the number of entries to approximately 40.

Southeastern Fair Association officials announced Sunday that there will be free admission to the park and free parking.

Miss Jesse Reese has been named on the board of judges for the bathing beauty contest.

'ROMANOFF' GERGUSON WILL BE FREED TODAY

NEW YORK, July 2.—(UP)—"Prince Michael Romanoff," who is really a former pants presser named Harry E. Gerguson, will be released from the federal house of detention tomorrow upon the completion of a 90-day term for perjury.

Friends of the bogus prince, who has hoaxed society all over the world, are negotiating a job for him in a Fifth Avenue store.

—the glorious day for picnics and outings—fun and frolicking! Here are a few last-minute food suggestions that will help to make your day a glorious success and make you "independent" from food worries.

Bible Game Will Inspire And Pay $1,800 in Prizes

Clergymen of All Faiths
Praise New Feature.
Rules Are Simple.

By THE BIBLE GAME EDITOR.

The Bible game is an inspiring new feature to be enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Public, and all of the little Publics. Briefly, this is the idea: C. Winston Haberer, the famous artist and etcher, is drawing a series of pictures, each of which represents a familiar Bible verse. $1,800 in cash will be paid to readers who supply the 80 most appropriate verse answers for the 80 pictures. Nothing else is required. There are no subscriptions to get, and it isn't necessary to be a thorough student of the Scriptures to take part.

The first prize in the Bible game is $1,000. The second is $400, the third $100, the fourth $75, and fifth $25. In addition there are 10 prizes of $10 each and 20 prizes of $5 each.

The Bible game is non-sectarian, and it has been enthusiastically approved by distinguished members of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergy. Here are excerpts from a few of many commendations:

"I have read with very deep interest and approval of your plan to more thoroughly familiarize our American people with the Bible. I am heartily in sympathy with this effort to spread the strong hand comfort of God's revelations in the Book of Books at a moment when these blessings are so sorely needed."—Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

"I feel that the Bible game will introduce the Scriptures to many who know nothing about it, and will reinforce the interest of many who have long neglected it."—Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

"The Bible game is an unusual attempt to popularize the Bible in an age when any attempt to teach the Book of Books is worth while. The game should have the cordial endorsement of every lover of the Bible."—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

"You are to be congratulated upon stimulating interest in Bible reading. The Catholic church has always extended its hospitality to those of its children who spend some time each day in reading the Bible. This was done because we recognize that the Bible is the inspired Word of God."—Father Charles E. Coughlin.

"It strikes me as an attractive and instructive method of interesting, especially our young people, in the study of the Bible."—Bishop Thomas F. Gailor.

"The whole concept of the Bible game is valuable beyond computation."—Rev. Dr. Walter R. Davenport.

"The Bible game will cause many persons, both old and young, not only to bring under review what they already know of the Scriptures, but also to open the Divine Library in search of additional information. I wish this worthy venture very great success."—Rev. Dr. John R. Sampers.

The Bible verse answer for this picture can be found here: "While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease. And Joseph dreamed a dream, and he told it to his brethren; and they hated him yet the more."—And the Lord said unto Moses, Pharaoh's heart is hardened, he refuseth to let the people go. "So the people rested on the seventh day." "So Moses the servant of the Lord did there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the Lord." "And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat."

The Bible verse answer for this picture can be found here: "And she said, Behold, thy sister in law is gone back unto her people, and unto her gods: return thou after thy sister in law."—And the Lord heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came into him again, and he revived. "There went in two and two into Noah into the ark, the male and the female, as God had commanded Noah." "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have." "Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents." "He took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people." "But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord." (Note: These two pictures are drawn to represent two verses chosen from The Bible Treasury, an abridgement of the "Authorized" or King James version of the Scriptures.)

INSTRUCTIONS.
The total prize money to be awarded Bible Game followers is $1,800. The first prize is $1,000. The second, $400; the third, $100; the fourth, $75; and the fifth, $25. There are ten prizes of $10 each and twenty prizes of $5 each.

The prizes will go to readers who submit the eighty most appropriate verse-answers for the series of eighty pictures. There will be no essays to compose, letters to write, or extra pictures or puzzles to solve.

The Bible Game pictures and verse-answers are NOT to be submitted now. Wait until ALL of the pictures have been published, then bring or mail them in at one time, as a set.

BUILDING ENGINEER AIDS GRADY STAFF IN HARD OPERATION

One of the most difficult cases Grady hospital physicians had to face Sunday was presented by little Sybil Ward, 4, of 190-A Savannah street. And then a two-hour "operation" was successful only through aid of the building engineer.

Sunday afternoon Sybil slipped a steel band around a finger on her right hand. She continued her play but when she went to take the ring off, it would not budge. Her finger had swollen. Her parents took her to Grady where doctors attempted to file the band away but the steel was too hard. A pair of steel nippers was borrowed from the building engineer, however, and through the united efforts of some six or seven persons, including the engineer, the ring was finally removed. The little patient is doing as well as could be expected.

SISTER MARIE DOYLE DIES AT ASHEVILLE

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 2.—(AP) Sister Marie De Lourdes Doyle, of the Sisters of Mercy, Savannah, Ga., died today at St. Joseph's sanitarium after a long illness.

The body will be taken to Savannah Monday by train where funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at St. Vincent's Academy.

Holy War on Repeal Urged by Bishop

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 2.—(AP)

America can be kept dry, Bishop H. Lester Smith, of the Cincinnati area of the Methodist Episcopal church, asserted in an address tonight before the 50th annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

He added the prohibitionists' best strategy was to "re-establish this cause as a holy war, a battle for righteousness in the name of God and humanity."

In his speech, Bishop Smith said the movement for a dry America began as a moral and a religious issue and that a revival of such preaching was needed now.

He then expressed his opinion that a "battle for righteousness" was the best method.

Five of Family Killed As Train Hits Auto

TEXARKANA, Texas, July 2.—(AP)

Five members of a family were killed today when the automobile in which they rode was demolished by a passenger train at a blind crossing near Bivins, Texas, about 30 miles southwest of Texarkana.

The dead: William Dooley, 38, farmer; his wife, Mrs. Mattie Dooley, 35; a son, V. L. Dooley, 11; a daughter, Carrie Dooley, 16; another daughter, Thelma Dooley, 9.

The Dooley family lived at Wayne, Texas, about two miles south of Bivins. The only survivor of the family was a baby that had been left at the home of a neighbor for the afternoon.

In Georgia's Fields and Streams

By H. A. CARTER

Omne Vivum e Vivo.

If there were any menus of seeing into the misty distances of geological time, when there was no life at all on this spinning globe, how many fascinating riddles could be solved? We are penetrating deeper and deeper into the possible means of the origin of life every day, but our route to the solution of this problem is beset with many pitfalls. As yet we can interpret the past only in terms of the processes of the present. Our knowledge of the great beasts and small beasts that roamed the world dim ages ago is hauntingly fragmentary, yet we have enough evidence at hand to picture in some detail the great stream of life that began we know not when.

Our precept is that all life comes from pre-existing life. That alone we know. Yet there must have been a beginning, for there has certainly been a progression, an evolution from the simple to the complex. We find our minds constantly turning toward that obscure time when protoplasm appeared in the cosmic plan. What conditions favored the changing from inorganic and lifeless substances to the organic, living, quivering matter? Ah, you say, there we have him! Man never knew the answer. But let's not be too sure. If any one thing can stifle scientific advancement it is the idea that we can never know the answers to the most perplexing questions. Means and methods of research now being developed may lead us to the solution of problems that we heretofore have held in the realm of speculation.

But in this good day life is all around us in a surging swell that rises and falls with the changes of the environment. This constant rise and fall of the tide of protoplasm makes for the constant change through which life itself is moulded and fashioned into forms that challenge our constant attention. The best definition of species that I know says that a species is an island in a sea of death. The animal and plant species that are here today are gone tomorrow to join the dinosaurs in the fossil fields of future time, while other species take their place in the sun. Evolution goes on, slowly, relentlessly, eternally, while we struggle to gain some bit of knowledge that will tell us how it began. Some future generation will know, even if we never do, and that is the beauty of science.

There will be another article by Mr. Carter in The Constitution on Tuesday.

Kidneys Must Clean Out Acids

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 3, 1933.

PATRIOTIC PATRONS.

Gratifying increase is reported in acceptances of invitation to membership on the patrons' committee of the Georgia bicentennial, not only from Georgians but from friends of Georgia who desire to assist the commission to adequately observe the 200th anniversary of the founding of the state.

Without such loyal aid it will not be possible to carry out the bicentennial program to an extent befitting the state's standing as one of the original 13 colonies and the brilliant record of her succeeding years.

The patrons' committee and its purpose is explained as follows by the bicentennial commission:

The patrons' committee of the Georgia bicentennial is to consist of one organization, individual or institution to represent each of the 200 years in the history of Georgia. The name of each patron will appear on the bicentennial tablet which by authority of the legislature will be placed in the rotunda of the state capitol in Atlanta.

Membership on the committee is by invitation of the bicentennial commission. Nominations for invitation are made by members of the commission and by the 70 state organizations which constitute the advisory committee of the commission. Any Georgian, however, may make a nomination to the commission.

Each patron is to make a gift of $250 to be used by the Georgia bicentennial commission to supply the information, inspiration and direction essential to a celebration of international interest and scope for state and national publicity.

The bicentennial commission is rendering splendid service and its efforts merit the support of the state's loyal citizens. The bicentennial program should be completed in full detail so that it will be in keeping with the celebration staged by the others of the original 13 states.

Already many organizations and prominent private citizens have become members of the patrons' committee. Through the generosity of the Atlanta Alumni Association of Emory the name of that university will be the first of the great educational institutions to be engraved upon the bicentennial tablet.

The Georgia Bar Association will place upon it the name of the late Chief Justice Logan E. Bleckley and Isidor and Jesse Straus will place upon the tablet the names of their father and mother, the late Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Isidor Straus, of New York, who came to Talbotton, Ga., as immigrants from Germany.

Georgians of this generation have a fine opportunity to signify their loyalty to their state by accepting the invitations being sent out for membership on the patrons' committee of the bicentennial celebration.

NO BARRIER AGAINST BRAINS.

The recently advanced industrial theory that men over 40 years of age should be thrown into the discard finds no indorsement at the hands of President O'Neal, of the General Tire & Rubber Company, and as such one of the largest employers of labor in the country.

On the contrary, this leading industrialist takes the position:

Men must feel safe in their jobs, sure of their jobs. If the only future they could look forward to was that, when they reached a certain age, they would be thrown into the discard, they could not do their best work. Men have to be proud of their work and happy in their work. We must recognize the capabilities and advantages of age and experience.

There can be no fast and set rule to gauge the value of an employee by his age. Many men begin to slow down from 50 to 60, others at 60 are just reaching the peak of their productive ability. Such a man is far more valuable than one of more vitality but less experience.

Brilliance of accomplishment is as dangerous as dynamite unless tempered with good judgment, and experience is the only safe and sure way in which to build judgment.

So the "old" fellows of from 40 to 60 need have no real fear that they will be bowled over by the rush of youth. Muscle and virility are necessary adjuncts to industrial and business progress, but the time has not yet come when they will take the place of brains.

ONCE IS ENOUGH.

A few of the business leaders of the country, actuated either by timidity or avarice, have assumed an irreconcilable attitude towards the economic rehabilitation plans of the federal government and can see nothing but the country gone to the demitition bow wows as the result of the progressive policies which have been inaugurated.

These objectors to the program which has been formulated to bring the country back to normalcy would have more "business" and fewer "theories" in the conduct of the affairs of the government.

The Hoover regime was heralded to the country as a "business" administration, but it led the nation into the worst morass of depression in its history.

If that is the kind of business administration that is wanted, the critics of the Roosevelt program are headed for continued disappointment, for the American people have plainly indicated their opinion that "once is enough" for such misdirection of their public affairs.

The so-called business leadership of the Hoover administration did nothing to prevent the economic catastrophe through which the country has passed and was impotent to turn the tide upward after the bottom was reached.

In view of the responsibility of such leadership for the depression and its helplessness to stem the tide of bad times, the least that those not satisfied with the policies of the Roosevelt administration can do is to keep quiet.

Under the "business" leadership of the Hoover administration the government did nothing to prevent the looting of the investors of the country by the Wall Street barons of high finance, and then allowed these financiers to go scot-free in the matter of income tax payments, while the chief burden of governmental support was loaded on the backs of those who had been cleaned out to fill the coffers of the finance barons.

It was time for heroic measures to set conditions right, and that is what the Roosevelt administration has done. That some of the steps undertaken are radical and untried is no reason why the business leaders who helped make the mess out of things which resulted from 12 years of big business control of republican administrations should become excited. Things cannot possibly be made worse than they were—and that business is steadily improving is apparent.

The country is at least ready to give the "new deal" a chance.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Trotsky Stays Out.

The fact that Zinovieff and Kameneff have made their submission to the Stalinian regime in Russia, has raised the question of Trotsky's return to the country. Trotsky was also on the point of returning home. A simple glance at the situation will immediately show us how impossible Trotsky's return is at the present moment. In every country the Trotskyists pursue a bitter and merciless struggle against the Stalinians. It is not merely a question of personal animosity between Stalin and Trotsky. Trotsky is the real Bolshevik, the successor to Lenin. Trotsky's idea is to utilize the forces of the U. S. S. R., the economic forces and the army for the furtherance of the world revolution.

Stalin wants to build up socialism first in Russia and hopes that it will appear elsewhere. Trotsky wants to force the issue. He blames Stalin for having spoiled the chance of a red revolution in China and in Germany. If Trotsky had his way, the red army of Russia would have rushed to the aid of the "comrades" in Germany against Hitler recently. Stalin has scrupulously refrained from interference. Under Stalin, in fact, there is no connection between the directory of the communist world movement and the government of the Soviet Union.

Stalin wants to live in peace and amity with everybody. Trotsky is willing to stake it all on extending the revolution, because he believes in the final victory of the proletariat in one country only is an impossibility. If one follows the bitter and sharp polemics between Trotskyists and Stalinists in their respective newspapers and periodicals, one realizes that there is not the slightest indication there of a reconciliation. Trotsky will return to Russia some day, he says, but after Stalin, whom he calls "an ignorant falsifier of Marxism," "a traitor to the proletariat," and what is worse in such circles, "a man with a petty and vulgar mentality," has been overthrown.

Masculine Splendor
When you read the clothing advertisements about this time of the year, you invariably discover an announcement about a coming change in the usually so drab composition of masculine apparel. You learn that in ties, spats and other adjuncts of that kind to the male make-up, there is going to be a riot of color. Flashing shirts, flowing trousers, extravagant belts are to make the appearance. A new kind of flamboyant flambard is to top the heads of our flaming youths. Each year these wondrous announcements appear, and each year the whole thing fizzles down to the same old dingy suits as we wore before.

Chattahoochee Golf Course.
The new clubhouse, owned and operated golf club. The county books show expenditures there of public funds to extent of $7,491.88. It was stated that the clubhouse was given to the county by a private citizen in exchange for this work. The use of convicts on private property seems to be prohibited by Section 1207 of the Criminal Code, and the doing of private grading, even if fully paid for, is not a proper function of county forces and brings the county in conflict with private grading contractors.

John White Park Subdivision.
The streets in this subdivision are strictly subdivision streets located close to each other and in no sense main public highways. Requests by the county for the use of the road work seem to have been used as an excuse for extending streets far beyond the confines set out in the city's plan. The streets are not mentioned in the city's records. Many county officials and employees are interested in this subdivision.

Glenway Drive-Springdale Road Subdivision.
This tract of 51 acres was owned by W. B. Stewart and G. F. Longino Jr. and others. Except for the southern end of Springdale road, the streets and the grading of the limits of this private tract of land—and yet the county has expended over $13,000 in grading and in building bridges thereon.

Niskey Lake.
Niskey Lake is a private subdivision and the county has from time to time spent large amounts in grading trails or roads around the lake. In ditching and building roads around the lake and in paving, the details of these expenditures being set forth in a previous report. The county seems to have spent in all on this project a total of $36,000, which had very little public benefit but which was very valuable to the owners of the subdivision.

Herschel Drive.
Evidence shows that Mr. Etheridge sold 57 acres of property on Herschel drive with part of the agreement that he would use his influence as county commissioner to have certain road work done and upon transfer of title this was promptly effected.

Ridgedale Park.
This is a private subdivision in which a corporation controlled by Mr. Etheridge and W. B. Stewart acquired for a nominal consideration 10 lots from owners of the subdivision with a provision in the contract that if the county would dig and refill ditches for water mains throughout the subdivision, the owners of the main would permit Stewart's Corporation to take the mains free, but if county would not do this, the owners would cost $50 for each lot. Mr. Etheridge also acquired an interest in a portion of this subdivision. The records of the county show expenditures of county funds

If a Madman Cuts Himself With Knives, Is It the Fault of Providence?

By Robert Quillen

The world is filled with suffering. Men spill one another's blood with bayonets. Gangsters rob and kill. Innocent women and children beg for bread. Crippled children hobble on crutches. The strong oppress the weak. Everywhere is tyranny and injustice and misery. And those who cannot think clearly observe these things and cry: "How can a merciful God permit such things! Surely no just God would make such a world as this."

They are tricking themselves. Their eyes deceive them and they blame God for the work of man. Divine power could prevent man's follies only by miraculous interference. And then man would move as though hypnotized, obeying a will not his own, and his virtue would be that of a robot. He would not be a man, but a machine.

Man is free to do right or wrong as he will, and the world in which we live is the product of his choice.

We see little of God's world. The world that dominates our lives—the world of great buildings and wonderful machines and marvelous inventions—seems to us the only world there is. Therefore we call it God's world and blame God for its faults.

But this is the world that man made, and all of its evils are the work of man. Its cruelty and injustice and poverty and crime are man's work. And the diseases that destroy man are products of the world he made.

You must get away from towns to find God's world—the world that is natural.

In the wilds of eastern Asia an explorer recently came upon a primitive people among whom was no disease—not even the common cold. In the South Seas, early adventurers from Europe found a gentle and beautiful race that had no acquaintance with diseases or the white man's lusts and passions.

No germ can live in open air and sunshine. Diseases breed in the filth and squalor and darkness of civilization. They are products of the world man made.

Examine any evil you will—whether the horror of war or the misery of the poor or the suffering of the oppressed—and you will find that man alone is to blame. His own folly and lust and greed cause every misery his kind endures.

We could make the world an Eden if we would. The task would not be difficult. Nothing would be required except to do the things we know are right and quit the things we know are wrong.

The evils in the world are the result of deliberate effort. We suffer as no other creatures do because our breed alone violates nature to do itself injury.

Report of Citizens' Group On Fulton County Affairs

in this subdivision of about $32,533.42. Some roads were graded without the authority of the county board and one road even before it had been declared to be a public road.

Old Jonesboro Road.
Old Jonesboro road was relocated at expense of $8,009 in a way to benefit the abutting property owners, George F. Longino Jr. and W. B. Stewart, shortly after Stewart's death. Such work has been done by Longino, Stewart being at the time a commissioner though Longino was not at that time.

Road Thru R. K. Adams' Property.
The county has expended about $7,700 on a road of slight public benefit through Dr. Adams' property, which was so located as to practically parallel the boundary lines of his tract and give him the entire frontage on both sides of the road, to the exclusion of other land owners who have been benefited had the road been located as a direct through route from one terminus to the other.

It appears that Dr. Adams had been active politically in interest of Mr. Etheridge.

Highland Avenue and Rock Spring Road.
This was an easement tract owned by Mr. Etheridge and J. T. DeJarnette. Ren Padgett testified that he had been authorized by Mr. DeJarnette to offer the entire tract for sale to the city of Atlanta for school purposes for $25,000, but was later told to withdraw from the negotiations and leave the tract to Mr. Etheridge.

Later Mr. Etheridge sold the rear half only of the property to the city for $25,000. Apparently there was a tacit understanding that in an inducement to make the trade that the county would grade the property and pave roads thereon, for immediately thereafter the road was improved by the county commissioners. Along with other work, the roads in front of that portion of the property retained by Etheridge and DeJarnette were promptly paved at the expense of the county taxpayers. These expenditures by the county amounted to $3,400, which it does not seem possible that the city would have bought a tract of land which required such large expenditures to make it available for school purposes unless the road were to be improved by the county commissioners.

In addition to the proposition by county commissioners of their sacred trust there is abundant evidence that public health authorities set up by law to protect the interests of the public have been derelict in their duty in allowing such conditions to exist to exist in spite of the vigorous presentments made by numerous grand juries during the last 10 years.

In the short time allowed us we have pursued the course laid out for us by the March-April grand jury. Our investigations are confirming our findings although extreme attempts to block us have been made directly and indirectly, by those involved.

We began our inquiries where the lack of taxpayers' money is largest—public works department, and there found so many irregularities it was impractical to widen our scope of investigation without the aid of the grand jury. Many of the subdivisions projected by some of the work authorized by the commissioners has not yet been completed, although in many cases it is now actively under way. In such cases the most emphatically recommend that no further expenditure of public money be made.

Urging Filing of Suits.
We further urge that suits be instituted promptly to recover all county money spent on commissioners' properties. We are assured by county officials that such suits are entirely justified and should produce a refund of the expenditures.

Further, our auditors indicate savings exceeding $500,000 per annum can be effected merely by changes in methods of bookkeeping and checking over through the gross misapplication of funds for private improvements and excessive salaries was allowed to continue.

The factual data already compiled by this committee makes a continuing work of the work imperative for the good of the county. No grand jury can carry out its routine functions and simultaneously conduct the extensive inquiry into the county affairs now demanded by the citizens of Fulton county.

The citizens' committee recommends that this condensed report be published in all three daily papers of Atlanta just as is required by law that grand jury presentments be published and that the charges be paid by the county. We feel this necessary so that all citizens of Fulton county may be properly informed.

use in buying cement contained a specification "legal" expense of cement to be furnished, yet at least one of the DeJarnette contracts had all brands stricken so that the company was to be paid a fixed price for cement regardless of brand or quality. It is also proper to note that during the time of these contracts three of the commissioners were under legal obligations to the supply company. The supply company loaned to Etheridge at one time $5,000, and at another time $300; (both of which amounts have been repaid), and having also advanced for his account $2,837.95, which has never been repaid. The supply company loaned to W. B. Stewart $1,100, which $500 has never been repaid; and J. T. DeJarnette loaned him another $500 which is still unpaid. The company also paid Stewart at one time $250 for some service classed as "legal" expense, though Stewart was not a lawyer.

The company also made two payments of $250 each to Mr. Hendrix's law firm for legal expenses.

Our checks between county commissioners and those from whom they habitually purchased large quantities of material seem so similar that the county auditors, during the city graft investigations that the citizens' committee find it difficult to distinguish between the two.

The sellers thus buy the commission money in enforcing compliance by the seller with its contracts; and undoubtedly furnished the basis for the neglect on the part of the seller to make accurate reports of sacks returned which has actually caused a loss to the county of more than $7,000 as previously explained.

We believe such conditions should not be again permitted to exist. Hug Georgia Truck Company. Through Mr. Etheridge's influence this company sold three trucks to the county for over $13,000 and at a profit to the company of over 40 per cent. The warrant for these trucks is dated June 11, 1933, and appears that Mr. Etheridge was one of the incorporators and organizers of this company. He testified that he had no connection with the company when trucks were bought, but an officer of the company testified otherwise and documents prove this statement. Mr. J. L. Respass, who is now and then county auditor, was also the auditor of the Hug Georgia Truck Company and made an audit at a date quite close to the date of the company's purchase.

He declined, however, to let your committee inspect the audit. We have a photostat of a note signed by Mr. Etheridge on June 10, 1930, along with the other stockholders of the company $800, of which money was borrowed for the company's benefit on the day before the county's voucher for the purchase of the trucks was issued. The note was directly benefited by this sale to the county of unneeded equipment.

We consider it more than mere coincidence that Respass was an auditor for the county DeJarnette Supply Company and Hug Georgia Truck Company all at the same time and in the affairs of all of which Mr. Etheridge was peculiarly interested.

List Said Not Complete.
The real estate developments we have mentioned constitute by no means a complete list of the private projects in which the county commissioners of this county have been or are interested, and on which county funds have been or are still being worked.

Testimony has been given before us which indicates that certain county funds have been used to develop their property and that of their political or financial backers at public expense, in order to bring about its sale. These funds have been made on the private property of individuals, to silence their objections to similar expenditures on the adjoining land belonging to these commissioners.

In addition, we have been given by county employees a list of about 200 parcels of land owned by the county, on which public funds as high as $168,000 in individual cases have been and are being spent.

All of this leads us to the conclusion that in spite of the resources of this county are devoted to the interests of a favored few, without regard to the interest of the public as a whole.

In spite of and doubtless because of, this illegal and selfish extravagance, not the least consideration has been given to the question of reducing the burden of taxes from which this community is suffering.

"Hostile to Good Government."
The power to fix salaries, to bestow patronage, and to employ the full resources of local government for the benefit of public officials and their supporters who are the beneficiaries of the system, has always been a powerful element in communities, which condone the acts of such officials and are hostile to the cause of good government.

There are many indications that we are confronted with such a condition. In addition to the proposition by county commissioners of their sacred trust there is abundant evidence that public health authorities set up by law to protect the interests of the public have been derelict in their duty in allowing such conditions to exist to exist in spite of the vigorous presentments made by numerous grand juries during the last 10 years.

In the short time allowed us we have pursued the course laid out for us by the March-April grand jury. Our investigations are confirming our findings although extreme attempts to block us have been made directly and indirectly, by those involved.

your style. You and I can be friends. I don't care anything about your votes in the senate. I know we all have to vote for our best interests back home. You can vote anyone you like and I'll still be your friend. I go down the line for my friends."

And he does.

SNOOZING The liberals higher up in the interior department are complaining privately that the Tennessee Valley Authority want to sleep on the job.

They have evidence that a certain power company has sewed up many municipalities in the Muscle Shoals area with long-term contracts to furnish power at low rates.

The lawyers are being called in to see if these contracts are good. If they are the government will have a hard time getting started in the power business down there.

That is the reason construction work has not been rushed along as rapidly as planned.

MERRY-MAKING Wall Street agents in Washington were in a flurry over the week-end. They heard the administration was going to move to depress the stock market. They ran wild until quieted by a trustworthy administration authority.

He told them the administration would do all it could to prevent prices from rising too rapidly, but promised nothing would be done here to deflate them.

The goal now is supposed to be $1.50 wheat and a 20 per cent further reduction in the value of the dollar in relation to the pound and franc.

That goal will be a long time coming. There will be many dips and curves before it arrives. However, the speculators were satisfied and made merry with the market.

CHISELS They have been doing a little sly chiseling at the postoffice department lately. It was prescribed after Farley discovered the departing republicans played a trick on him. It seems they ordered something like 250 postoffice cornerstones. At least that is the democratic estimate. When the stones were delivered they bore good republican names.

Farley frothed. He told the boys to get out their hammers and chisels and give the democrats a break. Republican names generally were effaced. In some instances democratic names were substituted.

Contentment reigns again.

DELAYS The senate investigators are planning to go to work on Speyer & Company, a New York international banking house. No evidence will be taken publicly until October.

The investigators whisper of the record that they have a better case against one New York house than they had either against Morgan or Kahn. It also will be delayed until October.

NOTES No one should be deceived by Professor Moley's renunciation of the limelight at London. He is still a Warwick in an observer's clothing. The innocent deception was necessary to preserve the standing of the American delegation.

The senate investigator who was prevented from going back to Louisiana on the Long case is John Holland. He helped Senator Tom Walsh in the Teapot Dome cases and knows his business.

Huey Long still threatens to carry out his plan to start that new national weekly newspaper if things tighten up on him as a result of any magazine expose. He plans to circulate it among veterans on a "no pay" basis. The investigation of his income tax will be forgotten unless present plans are changed.

Orleans, but there will be no money for investigating or paying any extensive witness fees. When the inquiry fails, the committee can plead poverty.

Slight Improvement Public Works Plan Shown by Boardman Faces Council Today

INDIANAPOLIS, July 2.—(P)—The condition of Russell Boardman, famous aviator who was injured here yesterday during the New York to Los Angeles air derby, showed slight improvement but remained very critical this afternoon.

Only Mrs. Boardman, who flew here from Birmingham, R. L. and a few close friends, were permitted to see the injured flyer at the city hospital. He is suffering from a fractured skull, a broken shoulder and a punctured lung.

So far no attempt has been made by attending physicians to perform an operation. His condition is so serious, they said, that nothing could be done but wait.

Boardman's plane crashed Saturday morning just as he was about to take off from the municipal airport here where he had landed to take on gasoline.

Boardman and John Polando in 1931, made a non-stop flight from New York to Istanbul, Turkey.

Jinkys Drive Away Monday Blues, Add Silver Lining to City Life

By THE JINKY EDITOR.

The Jinky editor has found the answer to the Monday blues. For years Monday was the day nearly everyone cordially disliked, but now it's a big day with Jinky fans because they may collect their prizes. The smiling faces that greet the Jinky editor is enough to dissipate the blues of blue clouds. You may be one of these lucky people soon.

It really gives me a thrill to see how much pleasure is being derived from the Jinky contest. It has served as an entertainment for parties, to keep the children busy, to while away the hours of a hot day or evening, but best of all, it has served as an amusement for many invalids. A pair of scissors and a Jinky have brought pleasure to many. If you have not tried it get into the swing of Jinky-ing.

Tomorrow is Fourth of July and everyone is preparing to celebrate. Jinky headquarters will not be open, but never fear, we will be ready for you on Wednesday. Get your receipts and Jinkys ready to enter and place them where they will be at hand to bring down early Wednesday morning. Remember don't pin your Jinkys and receipts.

This coming Wednesday everyone who enters Jinkys into the contest will receive a bonus. Twenty-five percent of all the receipts that are entered will be given back. If you enter two Jinkys with 20 receipts you will receive five receipts as a bonus. If you enter 10 Jinkys you will receive 25 receipts. This offer is good only on Wednesday, July 5, so it will be to your advantage to enter as many Jinkys as possible on that day. The receipts that you receive must be used to enter Jinkys the following Wednesday.

I want to give you a suggestion again as to how to go about winning a prize. The judges have endeavored to choose Jinkys which showed the most originality. While some were chosen for their beauty, those showing the most originality are most likely to win. You need not be an artist. Think of some idea which you can express with a pair of scissors and bring it to Jinky headquarters at 137 Peachtree Arcade next Wednesday.

progress of the flight by stages to Chicago. The premier was described as delighted.

Describing the flight from Amsterdam General Balbo said low clouds and rain made the planes fly at a height of 100 feet from Amsterdam to Ymuiden. After the first hour over sea, during which rain and fog banks necessitated skimming the water, the general described the weather as wonderful with little mist over Scotland and the Irish sea.

General Balbo had a conference with his officers at their hotel and gave an early start tomorrow.

It was four hours and 11 minutes from the time the take-off started from the Zuyder Zee in Holland until the first planes arrived here. The distance was about 650 miles.

CASH 'SQUANDERED' TO AID ETHERIDGE, COMMITTEE SAYS

have been derelict in their duty in allowing such conditions to continue to exist in spite of the vigorous presentments made by numerous grand juries during the last ten years.

Publication Urged.

The citizens committee, composed of Robert P. McLarty, B. M. DuBose, Julian Jones, C. C. Whitaker and C. F. Palmer, was appointed by the March-April grand jury. The May-June grand jury, to which it reported its findings, refused to make public the report. The committee announced Sunday that members of the grand jury which appointed them, and thousands of citizens, through their civic organizations, had urged them to make public the result of their investigation.

Moreover, the committee stated, a majority of the members of the May-June grand jury who were qualified to vote on the question, approved publication of the report.

W. T. Perkerson, who was chairman of the May-June jury, and Leo Stillman, one of the jurors, were disqualified from acting on the committee's report. The citizens committee stated that a majority of the remaining members approved publication of their findings but that Mr. Perkerson and Mr. Stillman voted on the question and turned the majority vote the other way.

Bribery Mentioned.

The citizens committee reported on its investigation of the county commission's relations with the DeJarnette Supply Company, and declared that some of the company's dealings with Mr. Etheridge were "in the nature of a bribe."

The committee urged that suits be instituted promptly to recover all county money spent on commissioners' properties.

"Many offenses uncovered we consider indictable and competent counsel have so informed us," the committee report stated.

The committee stated that its investigation of the Hug Georgia Truck Company disclosed that Paul S. Etheridge was connected with the company at the time it sold three trucks to the county for $13,000, and that Mr. Etheridge benefited from the sale. The committee said that J. L. Respass, auditor for the county and for the truck company, declined to let the committee inspect the audit.

"We consider it more than mere coincidence that Respass & Respass were auditors for the county, DeJarnette Supply Company and Hug Truck Company all at the same time and in the affairs of all of which Mr. Etheridge was pecuniarily interested," the committee's report said.

Money Lost on Cement Sacks.

Fulton county, the committee said, lost considerable money in not fully collecting 10 cents apiece for returned cement sacks. The DeJarnette Supply Company, said the report, for many years was awarded the exclusive contract for supplying cement to the county. There is now more than $7,000 due the county for cement sacks, the committee reported. No effort has been made to collect the money, the committee stated, notwithstanding that Mr. Etheridge is, according to the report, indebted to the DeJarnette Supply Company in the sum of approximately $3,000.

The committee recommended that suit be brought promptly against the DeJarnette Supply Company, and a garnishment served on Mr. Etheridge.

The committee said further that the DeJarnette Supply Company lent $1,100 to W. B. Stewart, a former commissioner, which $1,000 has not been repaid, and that J. T. DeJarnette lent him another $500, which has not been repaid. "The company also paid Stewart the sum of $250 for some service and classed it as a 'legal' expense, though Stewart was not a lawyer," the committee report stated.

The same company, the committee added, made two payments of $250 each to the law firm of Walter Hendrix, a county commissioner, for legal services.

Graft Probe Parallel Drawn.

"Such relations between county commissioners and those from whom they habitually purchase large quantities of material seem so similar to those the courts held as bribes during the city graft investigations that the citizens committee finds it difficult to distinguish between the two," the report stated.

The committee summarized its study of county improvements on privately owned property by detailing several tracts as follows:

North Morningside.—A tract in which the committee said Mr. Etheridge owned a one-third interest. The county has spent $31,000 on it, the committee stated, and $60,000 will be required to complete it. "When done it will come into direct competition with other subdivisions in the vicinity where citizens of Fulton county—not commissioners—have put up over $100,000 of their own capital to develop unimproved property for speculative purposes while the county has supplied the money for Mr. Etheridge."

North Side or Oakdale Subdivision.—The committee stated that Mr. Etheridge and W. B. Stewart, former commissioner, became interested in the tract, and that thereafter the county spent $96,140.02 in improving roads and building bridges for the benefit primarily of the landowners.

Chattahoochee Golf Course.—A privately owned and operated golf club, the committee said, the county had spent $7,491.88 on the property and that it was informed the county had been given some old brick and timber in exchange for the work.

Glenway Drive-Springdale Road Subdivision.—A tract of 51 acres which the committee stated is owned by W. B. Stewart, George F. Longino Jr. and others. Except for the southern end of Springdale road, the committee said, the streets do not extend beyond the limits of the private tract, yet the county had expended over $13,000 in building and building bridges thereon.

At Niskey lake, described as a private subdivision, the committee said Fulton county has spent $36,000 on the project in the last ten years, which had very little public benefit but which was very valuable to the owners of the subdivision.

Herschell Drive Transaction.

"Evidence shows," said the committee report, "that Mr. Etheridge sold 57 acres of property on Herschell drive with part of the agreement that he would use his influence as county commissioner to have certain road work done and upon transfer of title this was promptly effected."

The old Jonesboro road was relocated at an expense of $8,600, the committee stated, "in a way to benefit the abutting property owners, George F. Longino Jr. and W. B. Stewart, shortly after Stewart's interest had been conveyed to him by Longino. Stewart being at the time a commissioner though Longino was not at that time."

The county has spent $7,700 on a road of "slight public benefit" through Dr. C. R. Adams' property, the committee stated. "It appears that Dr. Adams had been active politically in interest of Mr. Etheridge," said the committee findings.

Sale of Highland Tract.

A tract of eight acres at Highland avenue and Rock Spring road was owned by Mr. Etheridge and J. T. DeJarnette, the committee stated. Its report said that Ben Padgett testified to the committee that he had been authorized by Mr. DeJarnette to offer the entire tract to the city of Atlanta for school purposes for $25,000, but was later told Mr. Etheridge would conduct the negotiations personally.

"Later," said the committee's report, "Mr. Etheridge sold the rear half only of the property to the city for $25,000. Apparently there was at least a tacit understanding as an inducement to make the trade that the county would grade the property and pave roads thereon, for immediately thereafter the request of the city for such work was promptly approved by the county commissioners. Along with the other work the roads in front of the property retained by Etheridge and DeJarnette were promptly paved at the expense of the county taxpayers."

Bookkeeping Changes.

The committee stated that even though the "gross misapplication of funds for private improvements and excessive salaries" was allowed to continue, that Fulton county still could effect a saving of $500,000 annually by changes in the methods of book-keeping and checking.

It recommended that the work of investigation be continued, explaining its position by saying "no grand jury can carry out its routine functions and simultaneously conduct the exhaustive inquiry into the county affairs now demanded by the citizens of Fulton county."

"Deep appreciation and gratitude" was expressed by the committee for William D. Thomson for the "unselfish, public spirited, capable manner," in which he served gratuitously as committee counsel.

Maintenance Charges Paid.

The Twin Falls Canal Company, of Twin Falls, Idaho, boasts that 99.12 per cent of water maintenance charges are paid, despite depressed conditions. The answer is that the company has a policy of "no pay, no water."

Build Up that Skinny Child!

Enrich His Impoverished Blood

Sickly, weak, underweight children are usually lacking in rich, red blood. When blood becomes poor, a child becomes run-down. Already weak, he loses appetite, which makes him still weaker. Take no chances on a child gaining strength by himself. Start giving him Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic right away. This famous tonic contains both iron and tasteless quinine. Iron makes for rich, red blood while quinine tends to purify the blood. In other words, you get two effects in Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

Put your child on this time-proven tonic for a few days and see the difference it makes in him. Good appetite, lots of pep and energy and red roses in his cheeks. Children like Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic and take it eagerly. It is absolutely harmless and has been a reliable family medicine for half a century. Get a bottle today at any store.—(adv.)

Conversion Factors.

Here are conversion factors listed today by the internal revenue bureau, showing how much the 30-cent processing tax on wheat amounts to for products manufactured from it, which will be the basis on which the floor stock taxes will be collected, all in terms of pounds:

Flour—Whole wheat and graham, .500 of a cent; all flour except whole wheat and graham, .704 of a cent.

Prepared Flour—Doughnut, .401 of a cent; biscuit, .660 cent; pancake, .493; pie crust, .422.

Cereal Preparations—Whole wheat type, including those chiefly of whole wheat, .500 of a cent; all others except those consisting chiefly of bran, .704.

Bread—All bread except rye, .450 of a cent; rye, .360; zwieback, .482; rolls and coffee cake, .483.

Crackers, .690 of a cent; pretzels, .732; macaroni and spaghetti (except canned), .750; canned macaroni and spaghetti, .188; noodles, .714; paste, .557; and foundry moulding materials, .396.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

Manning demanded "fiercely, "He didn't—he didn't try to—rm you?" She shook her head emphatically. "No, he only wanted to know about those papers. He wouldn't believe I didn't know. He brought me dinner at noon and tried again to make me tell, and again late in the afternoon. Then I had an idea that if I told him they were in your restaurant, Papa Marat, he'd go there and somebody would notice"

"We did," Papa Marat said. "But Manning went after him. Foolish move. Absurd quixotism in this day of efficient police service to rescue a lady in distress. Much better if he'd let Quirt sit there at that table and called the police. Perhaps not, either. Perhaps he wouldn't have told them where you were. I suppose Quirt's idea was to get you and dispose of you before anyone found you."

Manning felt a recurrence of the sickening fear that had come to him when he saw Quirt coming across the bridge with his bundle toward the black hole in the water. He reached for Virginia's hand, but Papa Marat moved briskly toward the stove.

"Coffee's boiling," he announced. "Get her a cup, Manning."

There did not seem to be any cups in the room and Manning looked in the other room. He groped about for the light, which seemed to be a repository for artists' discarded. By the half light that came in from the doorway he could make out old frames, rolls of papers or canvases, a skeleton-like easel with an empty frame hanging on it, but the one small window in the room was like a bright picture hung on the wall. It showed a square of moonlight sky; clear and blue, and against it, sharply outlined, was a head in profile. It was—

He stared in disbelief—yes—there could be no doubt! It was the head of Quirt!

Manning stood for a moment, still unbelieving, waiting for the hallucination to pass away. But it did not. There was Quirt's head in the window. And yet just a short time ago they had left Quirt securely bound and gagged underneath the cottage floor.

He expected the head to turn toward him or to disappear, but it remained there a motionless ghostly profile, blue white in the moonlight. Even in those few bewildered seconds it occurred to him that Quirt must be standing in a queer position to hold his head at that angle or he must be crouched on the floor just inside.

He moved toward him cautiously, but still the head did not move. He moved closer—and then he knew. But he touched the head with a shivering, shivering hand. It felt cold and hard, like stone.

"Come here!" he called to the two in the other room. "Come here."

Papa Marat hurried in and Virginia came hobbling after him.

"Quirt!" Manning said. And Virginia gasped. "Quirt!"

Manning switched the light on. It was a plaster of Paris head, perfect on one side, the side turned toward them, but the other side was broken away.

"It's Quirt," Manning repeated. "Yes, it's Quirt," Papa Marat said. "It is also that statue of Von Veb's that Sprague was so careful to break on the stairs yesterday. You remember, Quirt gathered up the remains."

Papa Marat shook his head. "Vanity, vanity! The vanity of Narcissus! He must gaze upon himself."

Both Manning and Virginia looked at him in dazed wonder.

"Come on," he commanded. "Come on into the other room. I may as well explain before you begin to conjecture. It's put your minds at ease. But you must give me your word not to repeat a thing I've told you until I'm ready."

They both agreed and followed him into the other room. He removed a stack of old chipped dishes and tin pans from the table to the floor, and placed the head and the hand on the brown oilcloth. They looked oddly white and exquisite and out of place. "Now coffee!" He rummaged around and found two old tin cups and filled them from the pot on the stove.

"Now, you two sit down and drink this," he commanded.

They sat down, cups in hand, on the edge of the bed like two obedient children.

He picked up the hand. "Beautiful thing, isn't it? Quirt's hand—except that he always wore a long finger nail on the little finger of his left hand. I never saw him without it except on the night of the murder. I noticed then that it was gone. I wondered why. I asked him. That's the first question I put here." He ran his hand over the rolls of tattered paper in his buttonhole. "I wrote, Quirt wants to change the appearance of his hand. You will remember I found the finger nail afterwards in his wastebasket. Brent was much amused. Then Quirt came back from camp needing a shave and announced that he was going to grow a mustache. Then I added another note to my file. Quirt wants to change the appearance of his face."

That reminded me of something I saw when I was Paris correspondent for one of our metropolitan dailies about 20 years ago. I began to look

"But the finger nail?" Manning interrupted. "I don't understand about the finger nail."

"This hand," Papa Marat said, "is the left hand of the statue. It was held out conspicuously. Wouldn't it have looked queer with a long finger nail on the little finger? Wouldn't Von Veb have noticed it? It is, to say the least, unusual for a statue to need a manicure. Wouldn't he have examined his Narcissus quite closely perhaps?"

"You mean that statue . . ." Manning began. "You mean Quirt?"

"Exactly," Papa Marat replied. "Exactly. For a short time that night, that statue was Quirt. Or Quirt was that statue, whichever way you care to put it."

"But," Manning remembered. "But that man—that statue was standing on one foot!"

"Yes," said Papa Marat. He put his hand into his side pocket and, this time without searching, drew forth a folded paper. He handed it to Manning.

Manning unfolded it and Virginia huddled close to him as they looked it over together. It was a yellowed page from an old French newspaper. In the center of it was a picture of a sculptor working on a statue. It was Von Veb, 20 years younger but undoubtedly Von Veb, modeling his Narcissus. And on a platform near him was his model—a beautiful boy posed on one foot—Quirt!—also 20 years younger—but undoubtedly Quirt.

"In case you do not read French," said Papa Marat, "the feature story that goes with the photographs is that of a model, a beautiful boy, who could stand on one foot for half an hour at a time."

"Then," Manning asked, "then he was standing there like that when Sprague and Mathewson and Brent were in the studio?"

"Yes," Papa Marat said. "He was there. He was posing on one foot like that statue—remember there was just a dim blue lantern—he had probably been posing for a good 10 minutes. He was rather shaky. He hadn't counted on those men coming in. He had been expecting to be released any minute. But when they came he found it difficult to hold his pose. And when they left, just as they stood talking outside the door, he slipped. Imagine Von Veb's terror when he saw his statue move on its pedestal. He probably knew Quirt was in the building. He'd refused to talk to him—but he didn't have time to think—he was petrified with terror. Quirt had the second yellow dagger of mine—he'd taken it from Sprague's studio and laid it some place near by as a sort of precaution. He jumped from the pedestal before Von Veb recovered himself and the thing was done. Then he smeared blood on the dagger in the hand of the statue. Von Veb was working on—his the weakly artistic sort that would do that—and dropped his own dagger through the grating in the fireplace and it fell down the old flue to the basement, where I found it. When the others returned to the room he was back on his pedestal. That explains why they couldn't find the murderer. They didn't touch anything, you'll remember."

"But the statue was examined when the police inspector came," Manning protested.

"Perhaps you will recall," Papa Marat said, "that Brent and Mathewson left Sprague on guard while they went down to telephone the police. Quirt went back to his own room. Sprague returned the statue."

"Sprague?" Virginia exclaimed. "Sprague?"

"But why?" Manning asked. "Why did they do it?"

Papa Marat rose slowly and bowed with elaborate grandeur, something like the debonair dictator of one of those romantic little republics of fiction about to address his fellow countrymen in a moment of victory.

"I asked Sprague to tell you to come here," he said, "but I was somewhat afraid he might fail me."

The inspector was, as usual, calm and courteous.

"No," he said. "He came to us. He seemed to be worried about the safety of this young lady—said you thought she might get out here and that Colby had gone out here. I'm sorry, Colby but—I'll have to"

"Arrest him?" asked Papa Marat. "And the young lady also?"

Hubbell Allows Six Hits in 18 Innings, 1-0

Carl Hubbell Saves Up His Sunday Curves---And Look!

Carl Hubbell's Sunday curves were good enough to give baseball one of its best inspirations yesterday, the Giants beating the Cardinals 1 to 0 in an 18-inning game.

Hubbell allowed just six base hits across that torrid stretch of baseball competition. And there were just seven fly balls hit. Which means that the Giants' pitcher allowed only 13 balls to be hit out of the infield during that long span of baseball.

Which is very excellent chunking of that baseball, any way you take it. As a matter of fact, Carl Owen Hubbell has always been a pitcher with what the boys call "stuff." He doesn't have to save up his Sunday curves. In 1929 he pitched the only no-hit, no-run game in the major leagues. His earned run average in 1931 was 2.65 runs per game and in 1932 it dropped to 2.50.

Hubbell started baseball in 1923 in the Oklahoma State league and in 1925 went to Oklahoma City in the Western. He was sold to Detroit in 1926. The memory of that sale is probably one of the most painful in the Detroit memory book. They didn't think he was good enough, optioning him off to Decatur in the Three-I and later giving him an outright release to Beaumont. Beaumont sold him in 1928 for a cash price of $40,000. So you never can tell. Stay in there and pitch.

THOSE FORLORN PHILS.

Burt Shotton is such a grand guy that when he announced during the winter that he figured his Philadelphia Nationals as a pennant contender, there was a loud cheering for the gray-haired trapezoid.

But Shotton's Phils bogged down at the start and refused to go anywhere at all, occupying all the basement quarters and showing no inclination to win ball games.

It is most surprising because the various members of the Philly ensemble are up around the peak in most departments. We find, for instance, that the first four hitters in the National league are members of Shotton's trailers. Chuck Klein leads with .377 and is followed by Davis, Fullis and Schulerich, the latter batting .340. Klein leads the league in home runs with 16 of them.

Fullis holds the lead in stolen bases and in double plays the Philadelphia infield is more than a dozen ahead of its nearest rival.

One would naturally expect a team with all those assets to be up there in the driver's seat. But the Phillies are not. The answer lies in the pitching. The Phillies have the poorest pitching in the league. A Philly pitcher with as many as two games won is a sensation.

All of which provides lots of fodder for the baseball fans who argue that pitching is 75 per cent of baseball, as it undoubtedly is. You may have the hitters, the base runners, the defensive set-up but if your pitchers do nothing but hit the other team's bats the season will be a most uncomfortable one.

Look at those Giants, for instance—only one hitter over .300 and yet leading the league. The pitchers are the boys one must have to win.

OLD SATCHEL FOOT WORRIES THEM.

Reports from New York have it that Satchel Foot Carnera, the new heavyweight champion who wears a size 20 shoe, is worrying his managers because he is so easy for the girls.

Denying all reports of engagements, one of the managers insists that Carnera is wed to the title and that his two children are his gloves. Ho, hum and lackaday. Not a very fetching simile.

It is very touching, however, to see the fond interest managers of heavyweight champions display in their charges as long as they are bringing in the money with their fists. They speak of "the boy" or "the big fellow" with a nice castor-oil smile and try to appear regular fellows.

But a very great deal of the time they would like to take a swift poke at the big fellow and go away and find some congenial company.

Meanwhile, plans for showing the captive whale go on apace. There is talk of a fight in Rome but if a fight comes it will be with someone who doesn't figure to worry Da Preem a great deal.

The big job now is to protect him. He is quite an asset.

"TOO BIG TO BEAT?"

They are already saying that Carnera is too large for the average fighter to beat and that he should be put into a class by himself. Which is just so much cold beef tea.

They said the same thing before the Willard-Dempsey match. Willard had just licked Jack Johnson, or Johnson had gone in the tank, at Havana. Big Jess was a fair boxer and he was almost as large as Carnera. Da Preem scaled 259 for the Sharkey fight.

Willard was six feet, six inches tall and weighed 250 pounds.

Carnera is six feet, seven inches tall and weighs about 260 in condition. He has trained down considerably and seems to be the better for it. He weighed 276 when he first began fighting in this country.

There is not a tremendous difference, then, in Carnera and Willard, who was the first of these fellows "too large to be beaten." There is just a matter of 10 or 15 pounds in weight and an inch in height.

Carnera is faster. The amazing thing about the fellow is that he moves, defensively, with the speed of a light-heavyweight.

But he isn't too large to lose. Dempsey tore Willard to bits.

They will all drop when the punch arrives at the jaw.

THE BITTER LESSON.

One of the internes at Grady hospital is a great wrestling fan. He returned from one of George Kotsanos' matches and insisted on showing one of his fellow internes a hold. He started to apply it and ended up on the floor. He got up puzzled and tried it again with the same result. He investigated and found that his fellow-interne had been middleweight wrestling champion of his college. Now he practices his holds elsewhere.

Columbus Negro Leads Golf Meet

Howard Pitts, 18, of Columbus, Ga., turned in a score of 65 yesterday to lead the field in the first 18-hole round of the southern open golf tournament at the Lincoln Country Club.

John Dendy, of Asheville, N. C., defending champion, was one stroke back of the consistent shooting negro youth who is a newcomer in major competition.

A & P Nine Swamps Railway Mail, 15-4

The A & P team in the Scott league Saturday pounded out a 15-to-4 decision over Railway Mail, in a hard-hitting contest.

Bryant, of A & P, got two homers, Patterson and McIntire one each. The winners collected 16 hits and the losers 11.

Senators Out in Front Now by Only Half a Game.

CLEVELAND, July 2.—(AP)—The New York Yankees whitened Washington's lead in the American league pennant chase to half a game today by beating Cleveland, 7 to 3, while the Senators were routed out at Detroit.

The victory was New York's third in the four-game series. The Yankees hit safely in every inning behind the pitching of Walter Brown and Moore, Brown receiving credit for the win.

S Chapman, Dickey and Sewell led the attack with three hits each. Chapman doubled in the first and Dickey in the third, and each repeated with a double in the ninth to bring Yankee runs.

Ruth was able to get only a single, which led to a Yankee run in the fifth, and Gehrig went hitless. The Indians used three pitchers, Mel Harder, Sarge Connally and Willis Hudlin, in an attempt to halt the onslaught.

The game was halted 50 minutes in the fifth inning by rain. The Yankees' lineup was: Chapman, 5; Dickey, 3; Ruth, 3; Gehrig, 3; Laverne, 3; Dickey, 3; Brown, 3; Moore, 3; Connally, 3; Hudlin, 3.

Sunday Offers Exciting Events In Sport World

One of sportdom's biggest Sundays in many a day was written into the records yesterday.

Upsets, unusual performances and spectacular achievements combine to give readers of this morning's Constitution an exceptional amount of interesting reading matter.

Of great local interest is the victory of Bryan Grant over Frankie Parker in the finals of the tri-state tennis tournament in Cincinnati.

Carl Hubbell, Giant ace, pitched three and a half innings of great baseball to beat the Cardinals, allowing but three men to reach first—by hit and two by walks—and the Crackers merrily pounded their way.

Eddie Phillips, the veteran Cracker catcher, ran the team with Manager Charlie Moore indefinitely suspended, and he and Charlie Scherier, the rookie who went into the lineup at third, batted in six of the Crackers' runs. Scherier, who went into the game when Dashiell pulled up lame, drove a high home run over the left field stands with two on in the sixth.

Lamar Bell clouted one of Klein's first ones within an inch of third street for a circuit smash in the second. None was on base.

The heavy attack which routed McColl in the seventh and continued against Hensiek saw Bonowitz get three and McKee, Stinson, Susko and Chatham obtain two each.

The Crackers started in the lead in the second inning on Stinson's double and the right field line, Susko's single to left and Phillips' double play ball. Chattanooga evened it up in their half with Bell's homer.

GO AFTER MCCOLL. In the Atlanta third the Crackers got McColl in a horrible hole. They filled the bases with two away and Stinson came up to work the count to three and McKee, who made it three and two and caused the big invader to ground out.

The Lookouts got three in the fourth, making it 1 to 1. But Atlanta got the three back in the sixth. Two were out when Chatham singled to left. Kleinhaus hit to deep short and Chatham was called safe at second on a close play after Kingdon fumbled the grounder for a fraction of a second before leaving. Scherier then popped his homer to left.

CRACKERS AGAIN GO ON RAMPAGE, MOORE SUSPENDED

Kleinhaus Coasts as Club Duplicates 16 Hits; Moore Suspended.

CHATTANOOGA, July 2.—Atlanta's Crackers had on their hitting clothes again today, laying down a 16-hit barrage for Ted Kleinhaus' seven-hit fireball pitching.

The net result was that Atlanta won, 7 to 4, giving the Crackers a sweep of Chattanooga's two-game home stand and chalking up win No. 12 for Kleinhaus against six losses.

A crowd of about 4,000 fans gave better when the Lookouts bunched three of their hits with a walk and sacrifice to score three in the third and move ahead, 4 to 1. But from there on out Kleinhaus was invincible, allowing but three men to reach first—one by hit and two by walks—and the Crackers merrily pounded their way.

Sarazen, Cotton Joint Favorites In British Open

Revolt in Air as Admission Fee Is Levied at Ancient St. Andrews; Townspeople Are Resentful.

By Frank King, Associated Press Sports Writer.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 2.—(AP)—Revolt in the air over ancient St. Andrews tonight on the eve of the British open golf championship because the historic links have been fenced in and an admission charge of a half-crown will be levied on every person watching play next week.

For 500 years, at least, St. Andrews linksland has been free open space for the townspeople, who, with their babies in carriages and out, their older children, their dogs, have watched world-famous golfers make their greatest shots. They were prepared to watch another crack field, including 17 Americans, compete for Britain's greatest golfing prize, starting tomorrow.

But that has been changed. Elaborate arrangements, made to prevent a recurrence of the mob scenes when Bobby Jones won the British amateur crown here in 1930, have ended the carefree atmosphere of St. Andrews golf. Some of the townsfolk don't like the arrangements and today while the links were closed on the Sabbath, there were rumblings and murmurings of discontent with reports that the championship committee may encounter trouble extracting half-crowns (about 50 cents) from the natives of Fifehire.

It was recalled that enraged mobs destroyed St. Andrews cathedral in one day during the strife and destruction of the reformation period, but no John Knox has arisen to incite malcontents now. Authorities have few doubts as to the success of their plans.

Adoption of a special act in the British parliament was necessary before admission could be charged for watching golf at St. Andrews. Concomitantly, as bitter and numerous as those of the world economic conference have been raging here, the latest came to a climax yesterday when English and Scottish professional teams went off to Edinburgh in a huff and played their annual match there after a misunderstanding with St. Andrews authorities over the gate fee arrangement.

AMERICANS LOOK ON. The big American contingent of professionals and amateurs awaiting start of play have been innocent but interested bystanders in all golfing politics. Today they rested their clubs and went swimming or motored to Glen Eagles in the highlands.

Tonight George Sarazen, defending champion, and Henry Cotton, crack English professional, ruled joint favorites for the crown with Walter Hagen, four-times winner of the crown, and Johnny Farrell, who has won the crown twice with his fine practice play, a step or two behind.

Boistering the American threat were Olin Dutra, Paul Runyan, Bill Burke, Danny Shute, Craig Wood, Horton Smith and Leo Diegel, who with Hagen and Sarazen formed the Ryder cup squad which lost a close victory to the British a week ago; Joe Kirkwood, the crack-shoot artist, and Joe Egan, of Waco, Texas, who with Farrell comprise the "free-lance" professional brigade; and four amateurs—George Dunlap, of New York, who reached the semi-finals of the recent British amateur; John Crane, Brookline, Mass., veteran, and the Sweeny brothers, Charles and Robert, who live in England.

Who has nominated C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ont., United States amateur champion; Jack Nash, who, like Somerville, is a member of the London (Ont.) Hunt Club, and Tom Anderson, amateur from St. Thomas, Ont.

QUALIFY TODAY. The field of 287 entrants begins play tomorrow with the first 18 holes of the qualifying round in advance. The other 18 holes Tuesday, the 100 and ties will begin play in the championship proper starting with an 18-hole round Wednesday. Eighteen more will be played Thursday after which the low 60 and ties will play the final 36 holes Friday. Only the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday scores figure in the championship.

Because of the heavy entry list, half the field will play tomorrow over the "old" or championship course tomorrow, the other half will play the new layout. For the second 18 of the qualifying round

Life Insurance "Tailored" to Individual Needs Advocated by Luther Allen

AGENT STRESSES NEED OF SERVICE TO POLICYHOLDER

Northwestern Executive Sees Business in Most Favorable Position of Any in Depression Years.

The successful life insurance salesman of the future, according to Luther Allen, general agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, will be the man who, through careful and thorough investigation, will fit the type of policy he sells to the actual needs of the buyer.

This policy, long ago adopted by Mr. Allen as a standard for the Atlanta agency, has proved unusually successful in maintaining the dealings of the Northwestern with its policyholders on a high and satisfactory plane.

The tailor of fine clothing, says Mr. Allen, does not merely sell clothes. He knows his prospective buyer, his physical build and characteristics and the styles, cuts, colors and materials which will best suit his personal needs. These and many other things enter into his consideration in accepting an order for a suit of clothing, and that suit, from start to finish, is a product of engineering, destined to fit the buyer's form, needs and personal characteristics.

Life insurance, he adds, operates in a similar manner and the salesman who sells a policy merely with an eye to commission or to profit to himself or his company fails to give his client a full measure of the service due to the policyholder.

Under the rules of the Atlanta office of the Northwestern, salesmen are trained and instructed to consider and study from every angle the suitability of any given policy to the buyer's needs. Prospects are not encouraged to buy more than their needs or to undertake a policy which is unsuited to their requirements. Insofar as it is possible, the policy is "tailored" to fit the man.

Life insurance today, Mr. Allen asserts, is in the most favorable position of any business. It has retained public confidence throughout the years of depression, and the sales material of no other business has been stronger.

Mr. Allen calls attention also to a clear-cut expression on the stability of life insurance, recently made by M. J. Cleary, president of Northwestern.

"When confidence in the value of the dollar is shaken," said Mr. Cleary, "there is a disposition to own material

Carolina Mills Post Pay Hike, 40-Hr. Week

RURLINGTON, N. C., July 2.—(AP)—The Burlington mills will go on a 40-hour week basis July 10, at the same time increasing wages 15 per cent to assure employees receiving the same wage as they draw now under the 48-hour week, it is announced.

About 2,000 employees here will be affected. The plant has branches at Osage, Statesville, Reidsville, Hemp and other towns.

The new postal law, reducing postage on local letters to two cents, is offering every indication of increasing the demand for envelopes to be used for advertising mailings, according to S. Guthman, president of the Atlanta Envelope Company, large envelope manufacturer, located at 505-11 Stewart avenue, S. W.

"With the announcement that on July 1 local first-class letters would require only two cents postage instead of three," Mr. Guthman asserts, "several mail advertisers expressed their intention to resume advertising through the mails on a larger scale than at any time since the postage rate was increased to three cents. This reduction appears to come at an unusually propitious time, since higher prospects in so many lines are urging many companies to increase their advertising in order to capitalize on the greater buying that seems assured in the near future."

Mr. Guthman, whose firm is the largest in the southeast devoted to the manufacture of commercial envelopes exclusively, is in an unusually good position to notice such advertising trends. He and his representatives keep in close touch with many of the leading businesses and manufacturers in the south, inasmuch as they supply many of these firms with practically all the envelopes they buy.

Northwestern policies are supported by first liens on the most basic values in the country—choice farm lands, essential railroads, selected, centrally-located office buildings, a group of excellent farms and 600,000 carefully selected life insurance policies in the south, inasmuch as they supply many of these firms with practically all the envelopes they buy.

"Where can a man invest his dollar with greater assurance of the safety of his principal, or with a more consistent record of earnings if the value of the dollar goes down, the policyholder will pay only the fixed number of dollars specified in his contract. He will pay and receive American dollars. Probably, when he comes to receive it, the dollar will be worth more than it was when he paid it."

"We received millions of dollars in 1919 and 1920 when a dollar represented 25¢ of a bushel of wheat, or five pounds of live pork. We paid back values that represented more than two bushels of wheat and more than 30 pounds of live pork—but we paid them. Other men put their dollars into many other things, and many of them never came back. Life insurance has paid and will pay back the dollars it receives and the law of averages will do justice to the policyholder, in the value the dollar he or his beneficiary is paid."

Fat Profits Headed for Limbo Along With Financial Racketeering.

By THOMAS L. STOKES.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(UP)—The Roosevelt administration has put an end to fat profits for American industry as well as the financial racketeering of the last decade, according to the consensus of economic experts who are studying the new industrial planning scheme as it develops swiftly here.

Multimillionaires and billionaires soon will become relics of the past under the government fiat which compels industry to spread the profits, which formerly went to one man or a group of men, over the domain of workers.

There is no limitation of profits in the act under which General Hugh S. Johnson is re-making American industry, but experts see such a situation as the natural consequence of the new "partnership" between government, which is the people and industry.

Old Order Obsolete. This is perhaps the most startling of many revelations which have come to American industry as it realigns itself with the new order. "New deal" means, they are discovering how obsolete the old order has become almost overnight.

There can be no turning back, Johnson, military man that he is by training, is driving the machine forward relentlessly. There are slight changes in its course as it moves ahead as was revealed in the completion of its first phase with the cotton textile code, but these changes are away from the old order rather than compromise back toward it.

Johnson has ordered a speed-up in preparation of industrial codes with the objective of getting the new regime in industry in full swing by fall. It has lagged somewhat behind schedule.

Big Ones First. Johnson's plan is to deal thoroughly with the big key industries such as steel, coal, oil and automobiles which constitute the larger segment of the economic machine, with the idea that the smaller industries will fall in line easily on these models. The codes for these major industries will be ready for action after the July 4 holiday.

Beyond the rather startling realization that the day of big profits is over, industrialists and economists have noted other results, generally overlooked during the last few busy days.

Permanence Seen. For one thing, there is every indication of permanence in the industrial recovery scheme, drafted though it was as a two-year emergency. With the co-operation of Johnson and his aids, the textile industry set up a continuing committee which will suggest revisions from time to time to conform with conditions.

It was not so much the creation of this committee which is a common thing in relations between industry and government as the scope of its functions which reflects a permanent character to the new experiment. It permits not only of flexibility in the codes, but broadening into a permanent body. The industry virtually asks the government to supervise its every function. The committee may recommend as to flexibility to production and hours of work. It will report on prices, opening the way for the government to control them if necessary. The industry agrees to give the government a complete picture of its activities.

Another development which economists see in the industrial recovery plan is parallel government regulation of finance. Industry must be assured of credit, and on an equal basis. Any favoritism in the extension of credit, such as has been revealed by the senate banking committee inquiry, could destroy new industrial scheme.

Milhous, Gaines & Co., Securities Firm, Moves Into More Commodious Offices

WALTER B. GAINES.

JAMES F. MILHOUS.

JAMES W. BOUNDS.

Due to the recent widespread upturn in business, and in order to provide more commodious and easily accessible quarters, Milhous, Gaines & Co., securities firm, has moved their offices from 1509 Rhodes-Haverty building to Suite 404 in the same building.

In view of the broad experience and contacts the firm has developed with investment houses throughout the country, it is in a splendid position to handle business in investment securities of all types.

Milhous, Gaines & Company is specializing in United States government securities, state and municipal bonds, federal land bank bonds, corporate bonds and preferred stocks, and investment trusts.

The firm, with headquarters here, operates throughout Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee. It offers to its clients a staff of experienced securities men, headed by Walter B. Gaines, president; James F. Milhous, vice president; and James W. Bounds, secretary-treasurer. Each has many years of securities experience behind him, which insures clients of the firm of valuable service in connection with investment matters.

Mr. Gaines was for 11 years manager for the National City Company of New York in the state of Alabama, with headquarters in Birmingham, later coming to Atlanta to serve two years in the same capacity, having supervision over territory comprising Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee.

Mr. Milhous served the National City Company for eight years—three years in the state of Tennessee and five years as assistant manager in Atlanta.

Mr. Bounds, before becoming associated with Milhous, Gaines & Company, was a partner in the Dixon Contracting Company of Savannah for approximately 16 years.

In his new quarters, the firm is equipped to render expert service to a discriminating clientele in a more efficient manner than at any time in its history.

Tampa Cigar Output Gains By 2,000,000

TAMPA, Fla., July 2.—(UP)—More cigars are being smoked as the "new deal" gains momentum, figures from the internal revenue office indicate.

The records show this city, which claims the distinction of being the world's largest handmade cigar manufacturing center, produced 2,000,000 more cigars during June than in May.

The total June cigar output was 26,000,000 as compared with 24,000,000 for May and 23,000,000 for April.

Scorching temperatures, which drove the south into the open for relief this week-end, contributed to the toll of 17 accidental deaths.

Eleven persons died in automobile mishaps, two were drowned, a plane crash killed two, and a lightning bolt and fire claimed one life each.

North Carolina led the number of accident fatalities, four, while Florida and South Carolina reported three each. Tennessee and Georgia, two each, and one death was recorded in each of the states of Alabama, Mississippi, Virginia and Louisiana.

The death list follows: North Carolina—Barton Pope, 25, and Marvin Adams, 27, of Winston-Salem, in the crash of an airplane; Alex Wagerstaff, 84, by automobile at Lincolnton, and Miss Margaret Nofsinger, 21, of Bristol, drowned at Lake Junaluska.

South Carolina—Baxter Gardner, 24, by lightning, at Cheraw; Henry Gaines, 16, and Joseph Gauley, 16, in truck collision. Florida—Robert Pearson, 30, of Lakeland, locomotive fireman, and E. M. Barnard, 70, Automobile, as a freight train and automobile collided at Auburndale, derailling the train; Harry Lee Graves, 42, fireman, as an engine truck and ladder truck collided at a Jacksonville street intersection while both were rushing to a fire.

Georgia—A negro killed in an automobile mishap near Atlanta and Marvin Weeks, 14, killed at Columbus. Alabama—Miss Virginia Fiddler, in an automobile accident.

Mississippi—John G. Cooper, 74, of Memphis, in a auto crash at Water Valley. Virginia—Francis Patrick Stephenson, 10, drowned.

Louisiana—Presley Bowman, 24, of Pearl River, La., in automobile collision. Tennessee—Billy Davis, 27-months-old, burned at Memphis when a bottle of gasoline exploded after he placed it near a water heater, and Robert Foster, 28, of Nashville, in an automobile accident near Franklin, Tenn.

MADDOX JOINS FENNER & BEANE

Son of Prominent Atlanta Banker Comes Well Equipped for Post.

Robert F. Maddox Jr., Saturday assumed new duties as manager of Fenner, Beane & Ungerleider, according to John C. Wheatley, resident manager of the Atlanta office.

Mr. Maddox comes to Fenner, Beane & Ungerleider thoroughly trained in securities dealings, having served some of the foremost investment concerns in the United States in executive capacities.

A native of Atlanta, he returned here after an absence of two years, during which he served as district sales manager for the Chase, Harris, Forbes Corporation, with headquarters in New Orleans.

His active experience in securities work began in 1922 as a southeastern representative of Harris, Forbes & Co. of New York.

Seven years later—in 1929—he became associated with the Chase Securities Corporation, securities affiliate of the Chase National bank, for which he opened an Atlanta office and served successfully as district sales manager in the southeastern states.

He joined Chase, Harris, Forbes Corporation upon the consolidation of the two firms in July, 1931. This service he terminated on June 1, of this year, upon the retirement of the Chase National bank from the distribution of securities.

Mr. Maddox, a son of Robert F. Maddox Sr., chairman of the executive committee of the First National bank and former president of the American Bankers Association, is thus well equipped by early training for the work he will undertake with Fenner, Beane & Ungerleider.

TARZAN THE APE MAN No. 85

After Holt fired twice at the retreating ape-man, the three whites started running, looking up in the direction toward which Holt had fired. Riano trotted and joined them. As they stood staring up into one of the trees, Riano bent down and examined the ground.

"Bwana!" he cried, excited. The men saw him pointing at a fern which was spattered with blood. "Blood!" exclaimed the black man. As he saw the proof of his marksmanship, Holt cried, exultantly: "I've hit him!" It was true; one of Holt's bullets had struck Tarzan, the Ape Man!

A short distance away, but hidden from his enemies, Tarzan was holding on dizzily to a tree branch. One side of his head and chest were covered with blood. He blinked and shook his head and moved off uncertainly. Half reeling from the effect of Holt's shot, he tried to keep on.

At length, painfully, he came to an open place in the jungle. Here, it was necessary for him to climb down. By half-climbing and half-falling, he managed to reach the ground, and staggered across the open place. It was getting dark. Tarzan felt himself growing weaker.
